126th Force Support Squadron

3F1X1

3FoX1

MISSION:

Provide consistently superior combat and community support to our members, their families, and the local community from cradle to grave.

VISION:

Earning the confidence of every single customer through world class combat and community support guided by integrity, teamwork, and innovation.

3F0X1 Personnel:

As a Personnel specialist, you will play a crucial role in supporting the human resources functions of the United States Air Force. Your responsibilities will include personnel administration, records management, career development, and customer service. This position requires strong organizational skills, attention to detail, confidentiality, and a commitment to providing excellent support to Air Force personnel. Opportunities for growth in the Human Resource field outside of the service are plentiful and your training/experience are extremely desirable. Training is located at Keesler AFB, MS and is approximately 6 weeks long. A Community College of the Air Force (CCAF) degree in Human Resource Management awaits!

3F1X1 Services:

As a Services specialist, you will manage and direct Force Support programs to include food operations, contingency quarters, fitness & sports programs, community support and recreation, and the mortuary affairs programs. Additionally, Services is the focal point for the planning and execution of morale and welfare events both home station and abroad. This career field provides key insight to the healthy sustainment of today's modern force and works diligently to ensure the entire organization is "fit to fight." Our Services Airmen prioritize customer service while keeping the base operational. Training is located at Fort-Gregg-Adams, VA and is approximately 6 weeks long. A Community College of the Air Force (CCAF) degree in Hospitality and Fitness Management can be yours!
